(Hudson, Ohio, USA / October 11, 2006) – Radcom, a training and documentation consulting firm, is celebrating its 10th anniversary on November 6. Starting in 1996 with one client and one employee, founder Bob Dianetti, the company has grown to sales of over one million dollars per year with many Fortune 500 clients in northeast Ohio and around the country.

Radcom celebrated its anniversary with a clambake open house on September 30 at its offices in Hudson, Ohio. Invitees to the open house included current and former employees, clients, vendors, and valued professional contacts. Bob Dianetti, Radcom founder said, “This celebration and clambake party is just a small token of Radcom’s appreciation for all of the hard work, support, and loyalty from our clients, staff, and partners both past and present. It’s a great team as you can see by everyone who showed up in the pouring rain to help us celebrate!”

Despite the rain, over 80 attendees stayed dry in a large tent and warmed up with a delicious clambake and chicken dinner served by Totally Cooked Catering of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio. Entertainment was provided by several members of Rolando Pizana and his Latin 7 playing Caribbean themed music which swayed the crowd. Rebecca Martin, a new Radcom consultant said, “It’s really great to see all these people and how much they want to show their gratitude and support of Radcom. Plus the music and clams are really tasty.”

A gift basket courtesy of O'Goodies in Hudson, Ohio was raffled to raise donations for Radcom's Mighty Mikey's Marchers. This was Radcom's team which walked in the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society's recent "Light the Night" walk in Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio on September 23. Thanks to the money raised from the raffle, the Marchers exceeded their fundraising goal of $5,000. To add to its celebration of success, Radcom staff, friends, and family cheered on the Cleveland Indians at Jacob's Field the night before the clambake anniversary celebration. Even though the fireworks were for the Indians' win over the Tampa Bay Devil Rays, Radcom staff felt some of the display was in recognition of their ten outstanding years of service excellence.

To cap off its first ten years of business and to celebrate a bright future, Radcom has created a fresh corporate image. Working with Clayman Advertising of Akron, Ohio, the new look reflects a streamlined and forward looking approach to serving clients. To see the new image, visit Radcom's website at www.radcomservices.com.

Having established itself as a leader in its industry and participating in many local and national professional and charitable organizations, Radcom is proud to call northeast Ohio home and looks forward to continue helping clients and the community succeed.
